MORRISVILLE VOTERS GIVE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES ROUSING APPLAUSE AS THEY URGE RE-ELECTION OF HOOVER, WATSON

MORE THAN 600 PEOPLE CROWD INTO COMMUNITY HOUSE TO HEAR ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN DISCUSSED — COMMANDER CLARK TELLS SERVICE MEN NOT TO TRUST "RAG MONEY" OF THE DEMOCRATS

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 3.—More than 600 people attended the Republican rally in the Community House here last night, and from the enthusiasm shown, indications are that Morrisville voters will again give the entire Republican ticket a big majority next Tuesday.

The meeting was under the auspices of the Morrisville Hoover Club and was presided over by Mayor Thomas B. Stockham. Prior to the speakers there was a fine vaudeville program, and music was furnished by the Morrisville High School band.

The principal addresses were given by Dr. William Starr Meyers, Princeton, N. J.; and William B. Clark, Philadelphia, commander of the 5th district, American Legion. Congressman Henry W. Watson, who is a candidate for re-election, State Senator Clarence J. Buckman, Dr. W. A. Haines, Wilson Yeakel, candidates for the assembly, and County Chairman Harry Clayton, also made addresses.

All the speakers urged the re-election of President Hoover and asked the voters to go to the polls next Tuesday and roll up a big Republican majority.

Commander Clark, who saw service in France and is very active in the work of the former service men, told his audience he feels the affairs of the service men will be safer in the hands of the Republican administration than the Democratic. He urged the service men and all other voters to back up Herbert Hoover; return him to the White House and to send to Washington Republican senators and Republican congressmen.

Dr. Meyers described other depressions this country has gone through and how they had to run their course, but by his far-seeing vision, his constructive policies, Herbert Hoover is bringing us through this great depression in three years. Other depressions, Dr. Meyers said, have run six, nine and twelve years. Dr. Meyers described President Hoover's life, his work, and he told the service men the Democrats wanted to pay the bonus with "rag money" and he urged that the soldiers had better wait until they get it from Herbert Hoover and then the dollar would be worth 100 cents.

Senator Buckman told of the 24 years he has represented this district at Harrisburg and expressed the belief that the Republicans of Bucks County will again help elect a Republican President and Congress. He lauded the record of Congressman Watson and urged all to vote and work for his re-election. He described the 18 years of service Congressman Watson has put in at Washington and told of his time and how well he served his constituents. "We are an industrial country," the Senator said, "and need protection." He added he could not believe the voters of this district will elect a Democrat and a free-trader. "It is very important that we re-elect Congressman Watson," he said. "He deserves re-election."

Congressman Watson predicted Herbert Hoover is the man to bring back prosperity. He added, "We must reduce our taxes and in order to do this we must produce thrift. The Democratic party has no idea of thrift. The Democratic party wants to break down the structure of the North." He urged it is the duty of every man and woman to go to the polls on election day and vote and work for the re-election of Herbert Hoover, stating, "We know what he can do."

Elaborate Floral Pieces At Sommerfield Funeral

Approximately 40 floral pieces were in evidence at the funeral of William M. Sommerfield, of Tennis avenue, Andalusia, yesterday afternoon, the pieces including many beautiful sprays, baskets and designs.

Service for the Andalusia man who was fatally injured Saturday evening when struck by an automobile near his home, was conducted from his late residence, and burial made in Bristol Cemetery under direction of the H. S. Rue Estate, funeral directors.

Beautiful Fall flowers made up the many sprays and baskets sent by friends and relatives of the deceased. Large yellow chrysanthemums predominated in the floral display which is said to be one of the most elaborate in this section in many months.

The deceased lived in this borough for several years, prior to his removal to Andalusia. He was enroute to his home when the accident occurred. It is thought the late Mr. Sommerfield tripped and fell into the path of the oncoming car. Death occurred in the Harriman Hospital, the Andalusian never regaining consciousness.

The funeral service was largely attended.

ITALO-AMERICAN OPERA COMPANY COMING HERE

Double Bill Will Be Presented; "Amore-Vita" Is Included

ON 8TH OF DECEMBER

On December 8th, at 8.30 p. m., there will be given here in Bristol an operatic performance by the Italo-American Grand Opera Co.

It will be a double bill night, consisting of two operas, which will be fully enjoyable for the fortunate ones attending.

"Amore-Vita" (Love-Life), a beautiful idyllic musical production of one act, will be presented first and will be directed by its composer, Maestro Carlo Nicosia, who will also direct the famous and perennial Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana."

It is hoped that all lovers of music, Americans as well as Italians, will be at the Mutual Aid Society Theatre, Wood street and Lincoln avenue, that night, and, without saying, the hall will be packed to capacity because the price of tickets allotted for the musical event is very popular. Only in this way the company will be encouraged and incited to visit here again.

Voters of Bucks County Support Your Congressman Henry W. Watson

A Native of Bucks County and a Capable and Efficient Public Servant

Henry W. Watson, lawyer and farmer, who has so ably and creditably represented Bucks County in Congress, was born in Buckingham Township, Bucks County.

A lawyer by profession, he has enjoyed a wide business experience and served large financial and charitable institutions as a trustee and director.

He has served continuously in Congress for eighteen years, having been elected in 1914. During that time he has served on a number of the most important committees, and for the last twelve years has been a member of the Ways and Means Committee, which formulates and drafts all tariff and economy bills that are passed by Congress.

He stands for a PROTECTIVE tariff and believes that the farmer and manufacturer of America is entitled to his home market, thereby insuring to the wage earner the highest wages that are paid to any workers in the world.

He vigorously supported all Congressional legislation restricting further foreign immigration. He stands for America first and desires that every American should be given the great opportunities of our Country without competing with foreigners whose standards of living and business ideals are far below the standards of our own people.

To him the Army and Navy are America's best guarantee of safety, and, therefore, he has supported a policy that insures these departments of government as America's first line of defense.

The American Dollar is our medium of exchange and should be worth one hundred cents on the dollar, the world over. Therefore, he has opposed all legislation in Congress that would impair the integrity of the dollar and has helped to defeat legislation that might, in any way, affect the financial stability of our Government and the currency that it issues.

He voted against the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act. He has always regarded both of these measures as unwise and a dangerous experiment. The wisdom of his vote in opposition to these two measures has been fully justified. He regarded it as an infringement upon personal liberty and believes that each individual State should regulate and control the manufacture and sale of all beverages.

During the eighteen years that he has served in Congress, he favored all just legislation affecting the Veterans of the Civil War, Spanish-American War and the World War. He has spared neither time nor effort in presenting the meritorious claims of his constituents, but he voted against the cash bonus bill, believing that to pass this measure during this economic depression would seriously endanger the credit structure of the Country and postpone our return to normal prosperity.

He is a strong advocate of world peace. He favors America joining the world court where conflicting disputes may be heard by a judicial tribunal, whose decisions would be supported by world public opinion in the same manner as our countrymen support the decisions of our Supreme Court.

The power to tax is the power to destroy. Therefore, he has supported all legislation curtailing the excessive expenditures of Government, and vigorously advocated President Hoover's plan for reorganizing the different governmental bureaus and stood by the President, at all times, for a balanced budget.

Always having been interested in agriculture, and owning and operating a farm over a period of many years, he has sympathetically supported all legislation that might improve and benefit agriculture. As a member of the Ways and Means Committee, he stood and voted for protective tariffs on all farm products.

He stands for private enterprises and vigorously opposes the Government getting into business or interfering with the free and normal intercourse of business, and voted against government control and operation of Muscle Shoals and similar enterprises.

During the past eighteen years as a member of Congress, he has given of all his time to the duties of his office, and by his experience and learning and sound judgment, he has enjoyed the confidence and friendship of every President since 1914, including that of President Woodrow Wilson, whose war-time measures he supported 100%.

WHAT BENEFIT OR ADVANTAGE WOULD IT BE TO YOU, CITIZENS OF BUCKS COUNTY, TO REPLACE A CAPABLE AND EXPERIENCED LEGISLATOR, WHO HAS BEEN A CREDIT TO THE CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT HE HAS REPRESENTED, WHO STANDS HIGH WITH THE REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION AT WASHINGTON, BY ELECTING THE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS, A NON-RESIDENT OF THE COUNTY?

THINK BEFORE YOU VOTE!

LOOT BANK

Merionville Nov. 3.—Several unmasked bandits looted the Gold Standard National Bank of between $10,000 and $15,000 early today after trussing up the cashier, his wife and daughter, and the latter's escort. State Police immediately broadcast teletype alarms throughout the state. First reports were that a woman had taken part in a hold-up and several cars had been used by the bandits. The State police alarm failed to bear out this report. Police said a garage man not far from here unwittingly aided the bandits in the escape. The repair man, they said, helped to haul the bandits' fleeing car from the ditch where it was disabled. As the car sped away he noted the machine bore no license tags. The hold-up bore every earmark of a professional "mob" of bank stick-up men.

"DOWN TO EARTH"

(By "The Stroller")

A gentleman who resides on Garden street was standing near his home in the company of his wife Monday evening. A bevy of girls came down the sidewalk, and by a glance from the side of his eye, the hubby, usually having eyes for his wife only, could not help but admire the comeliness of the maidens and their attractive garb.

"A-hem!" He straightened his tie and endeavored to give his attention to his wife. The beautiful creatures came closer.

And talk about shattered dreams and disillusionment—One of the fair "damsels" showing "her" hand up under her skirt, proceeded to take from the pockets of the long trousers which "she" wore underneath, a man's size handkerchief.

Then came the dawn—it was the 31st and Hallowe'en.

TRUCK LICENSING WAR IS WAXING HOTTER EACH DAY

Vehicles Halted at Burlington-Bristol Bridge For Inspection

BY TWO STATES

Started When Pennsylvania Commenced Enforcement of License Law

Trucks were halted at the Burlington-Bristol bridge today as representatives of the motor vehicle departments of the states of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, inspected the license tags.

The bridge manager said he thought the action was very unjust. "It demoralizes business just at a time when it is needed most," he said.

The reciprocity truck licensing war waxed hotter today as New Jersey refused a truce and Maryland began an active campaign with New York, Virginia, Delaware, and West Virginia reporting they were ready to enact retaliatory measures against Pennsylvania.

The war began yesterday when Pennsylvania started enforcement of a law requiring all vehicles engaged in transportation for hire to obtain Pennsylvania license tags before traversing the highways of the state.

Harold G. Hoffman, commissioner of motor vehicles of New Jersey, ordered retaliatory measures on all Pennsylvania trucks using New Jersey highways. Hundreds of trucks were delayed at bridges linking the two states as a result. Some drivers awaited orders from owners while others procured license tags.

Maryland State policemen were stationed at roads linking the Keystone State line today under orders of C. A. Baughman, commissioner of motor vehicles, to halt Pennsylvania trucks that had made 15 trips into the state since October 15, the date when the Pennsylvania law became effective.

At the Delaware State line, Pennsylvania truck drivers were informed they would have to obtain licenses within a period of ten days. Many of the trucks that did not carry perishable loads were held at the border until it was decided whether they would be required to obtain tags immediately.

Trucks traversing highways south of Pennsylvania avoided entering this state by crossing the river at New Castle, Del., into Pennsylvania, N. J.

More than 700 licenses were issued in New Jersey yesterday and Commissioner Hoffman estimated receipts totaled $17,000 with the $20,000 mark likely to be passed today.

Truck drivers at Morrisville, unable to cross the bridge into Trenton, held a conference this morning. They decided upon three things: either sleep in the cold cabs of the trucks to await orders; buy license tags, or return with the loads. Most of the drivers chose the former course.

WOMEN BUSILY ENGAGED IN SEWING FOR NEEDY

Red Cross Workers and Their Friends at Community Building Today

HAVE A HIGH GOAL

Many unfortunates will be kept warm this winter by the clothing which Red Cross workers here and in countless other centers are making. The initial step in this respect was taken locally today, when members of the Bristol Branch of the American Red Cross and their friends gathered in the community house to ply needle and thread, fit garments together, and keep the sewing machine humming.

One hundred garments are to be attempted monthly, with the group gathering every Thursday at the community house to carry out their humane task. Not only members of the Red Cross are invited, but all interested women will be more than welcome, states Mrs. S. Phillips Landreth, chairman of the branch here. Some workers from Edgely, Croydon and Emille, have volunteered to assist.

The first consignment of goods from Red Cross headquarters consisted of 45 shirts for men, and 52 diapers. The shirts are of dark, striped flannelette. These are already cut and plainly marked when received here. The necessary thread, tape, buttons, etc., are supplied by the Bristol branch.

With confidence in the future, and believing that times are on the mend, nevertheless the Red Cross feels the great need of the past several months

STEEL MEN OPTIMISTIC

Three months ago the directors of United States Steel served notice that improvement in business must determine the future course of dividends on preferred stock. In now ordering payment of the regular quarterly dividend after the industry's worst year they exhibit supreme confidence in the immediate future of business.

There is no pretense that the dividend was earned during the last quarter, for the entire steel industry has been virtually idle for months. It is to be paid from the surplus accumulated during the prosperous years.

Unfilled orders, the backlog of the industry, were 2,000,000 tons at the beginning of the month. For a month or more demand has been increasing slowly, due largely to a steady development of small business. The recent cut in rail prices is expected to give the rail mills their first large orders in months.

What does the steel industry foresee as to the business future that is still hidden to his eyes? Is it banking on a revival in the automobile, railroads, or building industry, or all three? They are its main supports. Perhaps it has lined up some large foreign orders.

All the world hopes the steel directors are right. Steel prospers when other industries are prosperous, and everybody prospers when steel prospers.

Automobiles are a strategy, but man. The smaller the car, the smaller the horse.

There's always a defense. If man can make a winning game, he can also make a losing one.

If only steelmen could learn that the salvation of the world begins where charity does.

China's other troubles increase, but she is getting some relief from density of population.

A general sales tax might help. Look how many bootlegging jobs are provided by the tax on gasoline.

The fault in education is that it spoils many a promising rabbit on fruitless effort to make it a successful fox.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a more movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

CHAPTER I.
"AS soon as the business is settled, I'm going back to the city," Crystal announced when they were driving back from the cemetery in the Orville Wagner mourners' limousine.

"Me too!" Adeline said hastily, adjusting her widow's weeds, which were a little askew. With Abner six feet underground she felt safer. And hadn't Fred Roach, the realtor held her hand a bit longer than was necessary in offering his condolence? It was plain he admired her.

"All right. Only you're not going to come park on me. Get that in your head right away!"

"Why Crystal, is that any way to talk to Mama?"

"Don't start sniffing again, for heaven's sake. I just want to make it clear, t. t. t. I know that would be the first thing you'd think of."

Adeline bridled. "Is that so? The poor old lady come to live on her daughter. Well! Let me tell you I have other plans. Miss, and don't you forget it. I can look out for myself, thank you; I am perfectly independent. Don't you forget that I am the widow, entitled to the bulk of the estate."

"Oh, you'll get the bulk of it all right. You don't need to remind me of that, Mama. And I know better than to come to you for anything. I know you. Every dollar I've ever got out of you I've had to get good on my knees and beg for. It's a good thing I've got other friends, that's all—I'd have starved to death if I had to depend on you and that old skunk of a husband of yours—counting every nickel."

"Shh—don't speak ill of the dead, Crystal. He was a good—"

"Yes, I know what he was. Don't start that. As I said, it's a good thing I had other friends."

"You'll never have another friend like your mother. And mama don't want you should talk that way. Mama knows you been a good girl, working hard at your art work and all, but what will other people think—(with a side look at Daphne) 'hearing you talk like that? Mama won't have it. You got to be more careful.'"

"Mama—will you shut up?"

"No, I won't shut up. I'm advising you for your own good, and I don't want Daphne should think anything funny about you—"

Crystal laughed out loud at that. "Mama, you are so quaint! You even make me laugh, and when I can get a laugh out of coming back to the farm . . . oh, well! How soon do we get the money? Daphne, you're almost a lawyer, how long do these things take?"

"I don't know," Daphne said, and wriggled still deeper into her corner. It was almost unbearable. Reflected in the window she could see Adeline's face, red and bloated under the brassy hair. She could see her mean little eyes, her cruel, sensual mouth. "Poor father!" she thought. "he was just a fool."

"But even that thought was not much comfort. She sat, dry-eyed and tragic in her corner. As long as he had lived she had thought, "Some day he'll be different. Some day we'll get to really know each other . . ." And now he was dead. The day she had dreamed of would never come. He died as he had lived, a stranger to her. Unless it were that little moment at the end when he looked at her and tried to say something. . .

"Well, here we are," Adeline was saying.

They were back at the old house. The sun was shining, the orchard was a mass of foamy bloom. It was still beautiful, still Spring. And there were potatoes to peel, and peas to shell for dinner. Old Man Haines was dead but they had to go on living.

Crystal and Daphne sat up late, talking. Crystal was in one of her best moods, good-natured, scintillating, disarmingly frank.

"Mama would faint if she knew the truth about me," she said and giggled.

Daphne thought of Flora, and the things that Flora had hinted. The expensive apartment. That artist, Ralph. . .

"You mean . . . about your friends?"

"Yes, though I haven't so many at that. Just a few nuts and artists and a couple of big butter and egg men. By the way, did you make any friends in town?" Crystal asked curiously.

"Not so many. Just a couple where I live, and one or two where I work."

"See much of McKevitt?"

Daphne bit her lip. But Crystal seemed so sincere, so honestly interested. As if she didn't care whether Daphne met him every evening or not. . .

"No, I don't see him much. Not—not as much as I'd like to," she admitted, determined to be as frank as Crystal.

"I thought as much. He's a funny one. He's either bombarding the doorstep, or giving you the absent treatment. Mama thinks he'd be the ideal husband."

Daphne's heart turned a somersault and seemed to rise and stick in her throat. Ralph. . . Crystal's husband. . .

"But I'm not so sure," Crystal went on, thoughtfully. "He isn't so hot. I think it's up to a girl to look around a bit first."

Daphne began to breathe naturally again.

"Of course, all Mama can see is matrimony. That's the way with those old fashioned gold-diggers. But I don't know, I think a girl can do as well without it. Now I have a friend, Avery Woodward, I'm just mad over that man, and still I wouldn't marry him—just like that, if I did. And then sometimes I think men are more generous when they aren't married to you than when they are. If . . . the bills I have! I'm of a naturally optimistic nature, but I swear to goodness I don't know what I'd have done if your dear Pa hadn't kicked off about now."

"I don't know where the devil they come from. Say, I wonder how much he's cheating on us? I'll bet she's got a hoard somewhere about the house. What do you say we look? How about that cracked teapot in the sideboard?"

Or under the oilcloth on the kitchen table? What do you think, Daphne?"

Daphne shook her head seriously. "I don't think that there is much money left." She hesitated for a moment, then she added resolutely, "You might as well know it—I've been sending money home for quite a while. They needed it for the taxes and the interest on money father borrowed."

Crystal's mouth hung open. She looked at her step-sister with contemptuous pity that she made no attempt to conceal. "Well, you are the prize idiot!" she said at last.

From upstairs came Adeline's shrill tremolo, "Ain't you girls coming to bed? I won't shut my eyes till you do!"

"She even talks in her sleep," Crystal groaned. "Well—we might as well go up. This is the night before Christmas."

"The what?"

"The night before Christmas, same as I said before," Crystal grinned, and did a few dance steps.

"There's a lot you don't know, Daphne darling, and one of them is we see dear Papa's lawyer tomorrow."

They went to Mr. Harris's office in San Jose, Daphne and Crystal and her mother, Mr. Turner, the neighbor, drove them in to town in his ramshackle flivver and Crystal complained bitterly because there wasn't any top and the sun would fade her new blue hair.

"You ought to be wearing black anyhow!" Adeline retorted. "I'd like to know how it looks, the two of you going to collect my dead husband's money and not a stitch of mourning."

Daphne, wedged in the back seat between them, flushed guiltily, but didn't answer. She knew what the neighbors had said about her tan coat at the funeral, but she wasn't really mourning for her father, who was almost a stranger in spite of the years they had lived under the same roof, and she wasn't going to be a hypocrite.

But Crystal was angry. "I'm sure you've got on enough crepe for the whole family. You'd look a little more inconsolable though if you'd wipe off some of that paint. Good Lord, how I hate to see an old woman all made up. I hope when I'm your age I'll have enough sense to take to bonnets and not try to look young."

Adeline rubbed at a bright pink cheek. "Is that any way to talk to Mama? When I was just trying to look a little brighter—"

"You succeeded all right. If you could see yourself in that bright sun! Don't you think the mirror when you . . . here—let me—"

Adeline burst out crying then, and with a smothered "All right—do as you like," Crystal jerked away and slumped back in her corner.

It was a terrible ride. How can they do it, Daphne wondered? How can they fight that way? And yet she knew that for all their bickering they were prepared to take sides against her. Not that she cared. She knew there wouldn't be any left to divide. Knew it long before they were sitting in Mr. Harris' dark little office and he had finished breaking the news.

CHEAPNESS makes only one-time customers. Quality makes life-time friends. The reliable merchant is more concerned with goods that will truly serve than with goods that will merely sell.

You won't have to buy so often if you buy Quality oftener. When you pay far less than Quality you've bought something short of Value; you've gained something short of Economy.

Buy good goods. If it isn't good, it isn't a bargain. The merchant that fosters only Quality merchandise does so because he considers it good business to do so. He is guarding his good reputation because he has earned one to protect. He is guarding the good-will of his customers because he has built up that good-will by safeguarding their interests, satisfaction, economy.

Quality is not costly today. Prices are low. Cheap goods are costly because their prices are too low to include substantial service and value.

will be felt for months yet. The general call for workers to make the variety of garments planned for is being heartily responded to in many sections. An opportunity is thus afforded for all to help their fellowmen who are in need. Time and willingness on the part of many will work wonders and alleviate much suffering during the winter.

It is announced the community building will not be available next Thursday, owing to the annual exhibition of the Needlework Guild. Therefore sewing will be resumed on Thursday, November 17th.

MASCULINE LINES CHARACTERIZE THE SHIRTS FOR WOMEN

By Alice Langelier
(L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
PARIS — (INS) — The shirt is out this season for all smart wearers of tailored costumes. And this, of course, means that it is most decidedly in, at the same time, in the style swim, naturally, but out of the skirt.

Chic women will wear the shirt on very masculine lines and over the waist-yoke. Nothing is smarter for the country or morning shopping. The newest and simplest models are cut on very similar lines to those worn for hunting. They come of canvas, soft wools, washing silks and crepes. More decorative are those of fine lace with broderie anglaise. White wash satin sometimes has a great amount of handwork.

In plain silk or crepe de chine, the pocket is embroidered with a Greek symbol. In the same of striped washing-silk shirt-blouses, these are eliminated.

The short sleeve may be used on the more elaborate ones, but most shirts have long sleeves completed with neat turned-back linked cuffs, also very masculine. The collar is of the same fabric, with tie of its own or the artist's bow.

COUPLE FETED

Mr. and Mrs. Huston, Mulberry street, were unexpected hosts at a surprise party Monday evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Neil Melvaine. The affair marked the birthday anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Huston. In cards prizes were awarded to Miss Margaret Dougherty, Mrs. Warren Armstrong, Sr., and Mrs. Eli Barnfield.

Electric Rates STAYED Down

"Were the utilities unregulated, as is true of private enterprises," says the Alabama Public Service Commission, "if they were free during prosperous times to fix rates without regulatory control, then they could with justice, perhaps, be subjected to the price fluctuations suffered by private business during economic depressions."

"If, however, they have not been permitted to earn more than a fair return during prosperous times, this fact must be given due consideration when we deal with their rates and their rate of return during periods of general depression."

Since 1913 the Philadelphia Electric Company System's total average electric rate has been reduced 41.4 per cent. Between 1913 and the end of 1929 commodity prices soared—skyrocketed! But electric rates went the way of periodic reductions.

Today the cost-of-living is still 44 per cent above 1913 levels... That contrast, we believe, adequately tells its own eloquent story.

FALLSINGTON ELEVEN TO BATTLE HIGH SCHOOL

By Oscar Corn

Tomorrow the championship of lower Bucks County will be decided on the high school field when Bristol High meets the strong Fallsington eleven.

Last year Fallsington claimed this championship because they were not scheduled to meet us, and they had won all their games which they played in lower Bucks County. Bristol also won all their county games and claimed the same. Therefore, this tilt to be played on Friday will settle this argument.

Fallsington will surely give the local Cardinal and Gray eleven a good battle, as they easily defeated Morrisville High, Bristol's greatest rivals. They have many veterans who will play a big part in this coming fray.

The local squad, due to the rain, had to practice upon the girls' hockey field, as their own field was under water. There they spent the day in signal practice. Yesterday they had a severe scrimmage, and some goal kicking. The feature of the practice game was a 50 yard run on a short pass, by "Sam" Ross. This was made possible by some very neat open field running.

also of Richmond. The latter escaped injury. Smith, who was driving toward Trenton, was rounding a curve, when a truck driven by Walter Jackson, Negro, of Chester, was proceeding in the opposite direction. Smith claims he dimmed his lights when the bright lights on the Jackson truck blinded him and he sideswiped a trailer attached to the truck.

Cox, who was driving in the rear of the bus, sideswiped the Jackson truck and then crashed into the rear of the bus. Potzer and Younginger were placed in the car of Miles De Parker, of Trenton, and taken to the hospital. Mrs. Cox was placed in a passing bus and taken to the bus terminal on North Willow street, near West Hanover, from which place she was taken to the hospital in the police ambulance. Dr. Edward K. Hawke took charge of the cases.

All the windows in the left side of the bus were smashed and broken glass showered upon the heads of passengers, who were shaken up.

Corporal M. B. McAfee and Patrolman R. R. Berger, of the Langhorne Highway Patrol, investigated.

William R. Garretson, 72, Dies At Tullytown

TULLYTOWN, Nov. 3.—William R. Garretson, 72, husband of Ella Carman Garretson, died at his residence here this morning. He had been ill one week, but death came as a surprise to the family.

The late resident of this borough had for a number of years served as secretary of Tullytown school board. He was known and well-liked by a host of friends.

Several years ago Mr. Garretson retired from his employment with the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was affiliated with Bristol Lodge, 25, F. and A. M.

FITCARRN HOUSE DIVIDED

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—The prominent house of Fitcarrn was divided against itself over the question of politics, arising out of the hot presidential campaign. Harold is for Hoover, while Raymond, his attorney brother, is espousing the cause of Roosevelt because of the ringing wet Democratic platform. Raymond has been asked to resign from the Union League Club of Philadelphia because of his support of Roosevelt.

ROUND-UP GANGSTERS

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 3.—Twelve of the 25 "big shot" gangsters seized in Chicago's biggest underworld round-up in years, remained in police custody today while authorities sought to link them with recent acts of terrorism. Accustomed to the elegant thrills of life, not to be found in jail cells, two of the principal prisoners, Murray Humphries and William "three-fingered-Jack" White, were unable to retire for the night because messengers had been dispatched to fetch their silken pajamas and some aspirin tablets to soothe their jangled nerves.

FUNERAL SATURDAY

Funeral of Mrs. Bridget McGee, a former resident of Bristol, who died in Philadelphia Monday, will occur Saturday. The funeral will take place Saturday morning from the late home of the deceased, 734 E. Allegheny avenue, Philadelphia. Mass will follow at a Philadelphia Church. She is survived by one son, Dr. John McGee.

AFTER the Bucknell football team had been battered into an overwhelming defeat by the Fordham wrecking crew earlier in the season, Carl Snavely, Bucknell's capable coach, wrote to a friend in New York that "Fordham has the best two teams I have ever seen."

That crack about two teams is a reference to the "shock-troop" gag which Cavanaugh and Hiker Joy are now making use of at Fordham. The Rams have two full teams of equally high caliber, which are alternated during a game. Cavanaugh calls these two outfits team "A" and team "B"; and there have been quite a few arguments as to which is really the best combination.

The Fordham mentors have divided up the work pretty evenly between the two teams in previous games, the new rules permitting players taken out to be put back in the game again.

The outstanding back on Fordham's "A" team is probably Ed Danowski, great punter and ball carrier.

Last year the ace back of the Battering Rams was Tim Murphy, perhaps as good a halfback as the East has seen in late years. He packed tremendous drive and was a sure ground gainer on almost every play. Murphy was not flashy, however, and some of the present Maroon ball carriers may catch the public fancy even more than he did.

Ed Danowski looks to be the most likely successor to Murphy. He has all the physical requirements and he certainly has the spirit to take the old pigskin and go places.

Danowski, a Long Island lad, which makes him rare on a squad which features New Englanders, is 21 years old, 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 192 pounds. No coach could ask for more than that in a halfback, especially when the youth in question has plenty of speed and spirit as well.

It has been said that Major Frank Cavanaugh, Fordham's great coach, will retire at the end of the present season. "Cav" has been troubled by ill health this year, and most of the actual coaching duties were taken over by the Major's capable assistant, "Hiker" Joy. "Hiker" has been mentioned as a likely successor to the Iron Major in 1933, and at any rate he has certainly handled the team well so far this season.
